Prerequisites: Completed summer reading assignment
Course description (forecast guide) This course is a continuation of the work begun in Freshman English. Students continue to develop in-depth reading and literary analysis skills. Themes come from contemporary literature and current issues provide the sources for analytical and creative writing. Sophomore English will focus on the state standards including writing in four modes: narrative, expository, imaginative, and persuasive. Reading for understanding historical and cultural context, students will continue to develop literary analysis and vocabulary skills required for success on state reading assessments and for pre-college entrances. Opportunities to complete writing work samples provided in this course.
Learning objectives: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>To enjoy reading and writing</li> <li>To develop group discussion skills as a speaker and listener</li> <li>To improve higher level thinking skills—analysis, synthesis, and evaluation</li> <li>To increase abstract thinking skills</li> <li>To develop critical thinking skills</li> <li>To increase vocabulary</li> <li>To increase writing skills for a variety of purposes and audiences</li> <li>To analyze, appreciate, and enjoy a variety of literary works</li> </ul>

Assessment/evaluation/grading policy: Grades will be determined by the total number of points received during the grading period. Points received will be based upon daily participation, exams, and completion of assignments. Missing or late assignments greatly affect grades. Extra credit will be given for attending a play and writing a three page typed assessment of the play. The student must receive pre-approval for the play; only high school, college, and community plays will be accepted, not grade or middle school. All assignments are due at the beginning of class. Points on assignments turned in up to one week late will be reduced by 25 percent. No assignments will be accepted after one week. If an assignment requires typing, it will not be accepted if it is not typed. Writing labs are available in the school if students do not have a computer at home or to print the assignment. If students are absent on the day an assignment was due, the assignment will not be accepted unless the absence(s) is excused. Three participation points can be earned each day: One point for attending class and participating, one point for arriving on time and not using the hall pass, and one point for being prepared and following the rules. A writing journal will be maintained. The following breakdown will be used to determine grades:            90% - 100% = A, 80% - 89.9% = B, 70% - 79.9% = C, 60% - 69.9% = D, 0% - 59.9% = F            10%: Participation            45%: Writing and reading assignments            45%: Tests, quizzes, and projects
